

The Course Numbering System at the CSU

Each California State University (CSU) course is given a unique identifier number which begins with a two, three, four or five letter departmental code to represent the department in which the course is being taught at the CSU campus. The departmental code is followed by three or four digits to signify the division or level in which the course is being taught. Generally, course division levels correlate with the difficulty of the course. Lower and upper division courses pertain to undergraduate degrees, and graduate level courses pertain to graduate (post-graduate) degrees.

Most CSU degrees are four years in length. Lower division courses are designed for first and second year CSU students undertaking an undergraduate degree although courses may be taken by other students. Many upper division courses have prerequisite course work which must be satisfied in order to take the course. Prerequisites are provided in course descriptions which can be found online in the campus 'catalog' or 'bulletin'. Detailed course outlines and/or syllabi are not available online but are given to students on the first day of class. Most campuses restrict undergraduate exchange students from taking graduate (post-graduate) courses.

Note that the campuses listed below operate on the semester system except for San Bernardino and San Luis Obispo. These two campuses operate on the quarter system in which three quarters are considered equivalent to two semesters, or one academic year.
